The background of the page is a photograph of the Great Pyramid of Giza and the Sphinx in Egypt. The pyramid is a large, triangular structure made of stone blocks, and the Sphinx is a large limestone statue with a human face and a lion's body. The sky is clear and blue.

ABOUT SLAKED LIME

The origins of slaked lime putty as a building material can be traced as far back to ancient Egyptian times in the construction of the great pyramids.

See the following page for some more recent projects Stratacote slaked lime has been involved in...

Recent slaked lime projects

Tip Tree Cottage

Location: Harewood, Christchurch
Bricklayer: MC Jackson Plastering

Stratacote slaked lime has been used in this project as a base ingredient for exterior re-plaster & repair following the Christchurch earthquakes.

Tip Tree cottage was built in 1862 and is a rare surviving example of a cob building in New Zealand, today it enjoys Category 1 heritage list protection.

Claremont House

Location: Waipara Gorge
Bricklayer: MC Jackson Plastering

Stratacotes slaked lime putty was used as a base ingredient for re-plastering the houses interior walls.

Claremont house was built in 1866 from limestone quarried on its own site & now enjoys category 2 heritage list protection.

Sign of the Takahe

Location: Dyers Pass, Canterbury
Bricklayer: Stonelay

After the Christchurch earthquakes the Sign of the Takahe suffered moderate cracking damage to the stone masonry walls. Stratacote slaked lime was used in the repointing during restoration in keeping with the original building methods & materials.
